Cooking stars come to TASTE

Two internationally renowned cooking superstars will be at this year's TASTE Food, Wine and Music Festival on Sunday 23 September.

Popular chef and television personality, Miguel Maestre will be returning to the festival this year by popular demand to showcase some of his sensational fresh cooking.

The Spanish-born chef is part of Channel Ten's The Living Room and cooking shows, Miguel's Tropical Kitchens, Miguel's Feasts and Weekend Feasts where he delights audiences with his enthusiasm for fresh produce and culinary cuisine.

Inspirational dessert creator, Katherine Sabbath will visit the festival and share her tips on making tasty treats and amazing cakes, while demonstrating some of her favourite designs.

Katherine is an online sensation with a following of almost half a million people across the world through her Instagram account. She has featured in magazines, books and television and was a celebrity guest on this year's Master Chef TV show.

They will take to the Chef Central stage at the event and provide food demonstrations for the audiences during the day, as well as meet and greet sessions.

More than 70 stallholders will this year bring food and beverages to the crowds, including international cuisine, desserts and wines from local suppliers. For the first time there will also be fresh and home-made options available as part of Produce Lane, including honeys, jams, sauces, salted meats and breads, to name a few.

Well known food artist, Charlie Yan, will display his exceptional food artistry and showcase his hand carved fruits and vegetables and live produce carving on the day as part of Produce Lane.

After the TASTE Food, Wine and Music Festival, 12pm-5pm, everyone is invited to the Camden main street to enjoy live music and great food as part of TASTE After Hours at some of the hotels and restaurants in Argyle Street: -
