Create a garden oasis for native creatures

Residents looking to attract native wildlife to their garden can benefit from a free workshop this month.

Council has funded the workshop to help amateur and professional gardeners create a habitat garden.

“Residents can have a positive impact on the local environment and support the biodiversity of our area by making some deliberate planting choices,” said Mayor Peter Sidgreaves.

“You can attract birds and insects into the garden whether it is in a big or small space and enjoy the benefits of connecting with the natural environment at your home,” Cr Sidgreaves said.

The Creating a Habitat Garden workshop will be held 1pm to 3pm, Saturday 13 October at the Macarthur Centre for Sustainable Living, Mount Annan.

Other sessions to be held in October include Organic Gardening; Worm Farming and Composting; Preserving Food; Thai Cooking; and Reducing Plastic Bag Pollution.
