Ninja Warrior course headlines at Bounce Town

Bounce Town will pop up in Oran Park for young people of all ages to enjoy as part of NSW Youth Week in April.

The free inflatable extravaganza will this year include a large scale Ninja Warrior obstacle course that will test the speed, agility and courage of anyone who dares to try it.

The three stage course spans 15 metres and includes a six metre platform, dodge balls and steep climbs.

There will also be slides, obstacle courses and jumping castles suitable for toddlers through to teenagers.

“This is a fantastic family friendly event that offers physical, fun activity in a beautiful park setting,” said Mayor Lara Symkowiak.

“The event has designated, age appropriate inflatable obstacles, rides and equipment for toddlers, children and teenagers to play on separately,” Cr Symkowiak said.

There are three designated areas to cater to each age group:

- Toddler Town: For under 5's - Toys and play equipment area safe from the bigger kids.
- Kids Town: For ages 5-12 years - A slide and obstacle section.
- Thrill Town: For bigger kids and adults - Ninja Warrior style obstacle course.

There will be some food stalls and covered seating at the free event: 10am-3pm, Wednesday 18 April at Jack Brabham Reserve, Oran Park.
