Feedback about new water play park

The initial concept plans for a new water play park at Curry Reserve in Elderslie are now available for people to view.

Input from residents gathered during consultation in May last year has been used to guide the preliminary plans.

“Community feedback to surveys and discussions last year made it clear that there is strong support for an inclusive water play space, suitable to people of all abilities,” said Mayor Lara Symkowiak.

“It is important that the park is functional, attractive and enjoyable to a diversity of people for it to be a real asset to the community,” Cr Symkowiak said.

“Engaging with residents at each step of the project is important to ensuring that everyone is involved as the plans progress,” she said.

The play park is one of a suite of new parks to be developed in 2018, including the brand new youth and recreational play spaces at Harrington Park and Currans Hill.

The project includes toilets, new paths, parking, shelter upgrades and water play facilities. The suggested locations of these are outlined in the concept design plans.

Staff will be at the site to provide information about the concept for the park at Curry Reserve, Elderslie, 10am-2pm, Sunday 21 January.

The designs are also available on Council’s website, www.camden.nsw.gov.au.
